QUALIFICATION CRITERIA

The Sir Edmund Hillary Mountain Legacy Medal is awarded "for remarkable service in the conservation of culture and nature in remote mountainous regions."

- > Nominees working in remote mountainous regions anywhere in the world will be eligible.
- > As the award is for both cultural and environmental conservation, nominees should be working in inhabited mountain regions that are remote from population centers and most elements of modern infrastructure.
- > One purpose of this award is to draw attention to efforts that are in need of broader support; therefore nominees should be currently engaged in such a project.
- > Nominations of third parties as well as self-nominations will be accepted.
- > Hillary Medal recipients cannot be re-nominated; however, unsuccessful candidates may be re-nominated without prejudice.
- > Two or more individuals may share a joint nomination if they seem to be due equal credit for the same projects; however, in such cases only one medal will be awarded jointly to the team.
- > The identities of nominators and of unsuccessful nominees shall remain confidential.
